see separate sheet

Re Item V

The following document D1, cited in the application, is referred to in this communication; the numbering will be adhered to in the rest of the procedure:

D1: US 2003/180466 A1 (JENSEN JOHN MICHAEL ET AL) 25 September 2003
(2003-09-25)

1 Novelty

The present application does not meet the criteria of Article 33(1) PCT, because the subject-matter of claims 1-18 is not new in the sense of Article 33(2) PCT.

A claim defining a product for a particular use e.g. blocking of stains, is to be construed as meaning a product which is in fact suitable for the stated use. A known product which prima facie is the same as the product defined in the claim and is in the form in which it is in fact suitable for the stated use is novelty destroying for the subject matter of said claim (PCT Guidelines Part II, 5.21).

Claims 1-18: Document D1 discloses a clear aqueous coating composition with anti-soil and anti-spotting properties comprising > 10 % wt. hydrotalcite nano size clay (§0019; 0044; 0052 and 0078), a dispersants (§0087), a surfactant, a PU resin (§0263 and example 1) and optional additives (§0197). The coating can be used on unclean and stained surfaces (§0091). In the case where the substrate is chosen from wood, water extractable agents are present in the substrate, as such the method of claim 10, the coated substrate of claim 13 and the use of claim 15 are anticipated in D1 (§0040). Therefore, the subject matter of claims 1-18 is not novel in view of D1.

Re Item VIII

Claim 8: The addition of the percentages of the individual coating components surpasses 100 % wt. when the amount of the water borne organic binder is chosen at 100% wt.

Claim 9 is formulated as a product claim, in the current form it does not contain any additional subject matter over claim 1 and is therefore redundant.

Claims 3 and 17: The attention of the applicant is drawn to the fact that the term "optionally" in claims 3 and 17, has no limiting affect on the scope of the claim, that is to say, the feature following said term is to be regarded as entirely optional (Guidelines C-III, 4.6).
